Haiti's "Emperor Jones"

By Robert W. Richardson

MIST swirled about the mountain, as up the steep limestone road came a queer procession, all negroes, some in the elaborate uniforms of the time of Napoleon, one with his head wrapped in bloodstained bandages—all taking turns carrying a hammock in which a very tall negro lay, a small round hole in his forehead. The road suddenly leveled out and then like a curtain in a theater the fog parted and the final act of one of history's greatest dramas began.

There rising hundreds of feet above them were walls of yellow brick studded with row on row of black mouthed cannon and even as these tired refugees halted in relief one of the larger monsters burst forth in a sheet of flame, the noise echoing for minutes in the deep valleys—the morning gun of the strongest fortress in the western hemisphere, second only to Gibraltar in all the world. For this was the citadel La Ferriere, stronghold of the Kingdom of Haiti and the talk of Europe. Now nearly completed, its 14 years of construction had cost over 20,000 lives. Built to the command of the greatest man of his race to insure the independence of his country should Napoleon's troops return, it had become a tyrant's plaything.

Henri Christophe had been a slave on a French ship aiding the Americans at the siege of Savannah, there to dream that he might establish in his people a pride in their race, that they too could build a nation. But his chance didn't come until 1805 when he became President of the new Republic of Haiti but thwarted by Vice-President Petion's jealousy he formed the northern districts into a kingdom with himself as ruler. Now he was 50 years old and in his haste to build up the country he became a tyrant, punishing severely all who delayed his plans—many being thrown from the parapet of the citadel into the 700 foot abyss of Grand Boucan. But a stumble in a church brought to naught all his efforts, for he became paralyzed from the waist down. Heretofore his towering figure was sufficient to cow his enemies but now Alexander Petion marched against him, Christophe's troops joining the vengeful President, and so, one evening Christophe as he lay helpless on his bed in the great palace of Sans Souci hears the mob approaching through the halls, shattering the great mirrors, shouting "Morte au Christophe"—"Death to Christophe." Then he reaches for that pistol prepared so many years ago with its silver bullet . . .

. . . Within the Citadel on the following morning just as the travel stained refugees approach, the day's work was commencing. In the dungeons jailers gave meager rations to prisoners, many of whom had not seen daylight for years; on the parade ground the garrison was lining up for roll-call and masons were mixing a pit of lime; in the Galleries of the King artillerists were recharging the huge gun—but the prisoners are doomed to starve to death, the roll-call is destined never to be read, the lime never to cement the walls of La Ferriere for the sentry over the single gate is watching the little group approach—they pass under him and then horror stricken he recognizes he who lays in the hammock with the small round hole in his forehead. Dropping his gun, the sentry runs to the parade ground—all eyes turn toward him, the officer with roll-call in hand hesitates, "Le Roi est mort!"—"the King is dead!" shouts the sentry and in a moment the fortress is in a tumult. Out the gate, past officers vainly attempting to stop them, past the carriers with their hammock, soldiers and workmen run and in a few minutes only a small group of officers and faithful servants remain.

"There is no time for burial," one says, "remember how they tore Des-salines to pieces"—"Petion would hang the body in the square at Port-au-Prince"—"we must place him where he will be beyond reach"—one glances at the lime pit, "it will be hard in an hour." Four of them take the body, gently swing it into the pit and in a few moments the features of Henri I, King of Haiti, have disappeared forever, except by some freak a huge clenched fist protruded from the hardened lime, a symbol as it were of his power.

. . . fourteen years of labor, the lives of tens of thousands of his country men, the expenditure of fabulous sums of gold,—all were brought to nothing by a carelessly laid brick in the church at Limonade. But his efforts did instill a little of that pride of race he had hoped, for ever since he has been called not the King, but "L Homme"—"The Man." The jewel of the West Indies has ever since remained unconquered, just as it defeated Napoleon and Christophe and those who tried to succeed them. Today only the tourist wanders through the ruins of the palace of Sans Souci, once a replica of Versailles, and the great citadel that has survived earthquake and tropical storm for over a century.  "The best laid plans of mice and men go oft awry" indeed.

Ideas To Help Boost Your Club

Following are two new stunts that have been put in effect by the Chicago Philatelic Society. These suggestions might be used by your club and at the same time, if your club is doing things that could be done by other clubs we will be glad to print such ideas for the benefit of others.

We are indebted to Captain Townsend for this, and following are the suggestions he sends:

The Chicago Philatelic Society has purchased a large frame, 2 feet by 3 feet, with an easel, for the use of the club. At each meeting hereafter some member will arrive early and fill the frame with interesting stamps, covers, etc., from his own collection, for the benefit of the other members.

The club is also establishing a library on a new plan. It is buying worthwhile books and catalogs from club funds. These are to be loaned to members between meetings at a charge of 10c per book, and as funds accumulate additions will be made from time to time, and then the original funds returned to the club treasury.

A General Collection

I have talked with other collectors and have read many articles as to what to collect and how to collect, and in almost all cases they tend to specialize in some way or other.

I am nothing but an aimless general collector and have not the least desire to complete any special issue or obtain any rare stamp. My collection of about ten thousand foreign stamps contains the cheapest varieties spread all over the world, and they did not cost me nearly as much as collecting about five hundred United States Stamps, but what a lot of fun I have had out of them.

I said I did not specialize, but I must qualify that a little. My preference is for used stamps. Always, the "used" stamp has had a fascination for me. It has done its work and has carried some message. I open my book to Norway and Sweden, and think of the people who had sent those messages from those cold northern countries; some forgotten, some never forgotten, some frivolous, earnest, sad or happy. Then, I turn to the hot countries of Africa with a feeling of curiosity as to how their messages may differ from other parts of the world, yet probably no different, since our emotions are the same throughout the world.

I do not know of ever having talked to anyone who had these thoughts about a used stamp, consequently was very much surprised to read such thoughts expressed from a totally unexpected source, although in different language than I could have expressed it.

The other evening, while visiting the Public Library, I picked up a book called "Aliens", written by William McFee, and turning over the pages came to the following paragraph:

"Van Roon in Chelsea used to say that: A man's mind was like a chamber papered with used postage stamps. Examine them separately and they were of no value; they were merely cancelled symbols of forgotten messages. View them as a whole and they formed an interesting and confusing composition. The Great Decorator has arranged us without regard to our individual merits or past intrinsic values. We are but points of color in His immense and arbitrary arrangement."

General Collector Wins Highest Award

Charles Curie, prominent lawyer of New York city, was crowned champion philatelist of the United States, at the banquet of the National Stamp Exhibition, sponsored by the American Philatelic Society, at the Hotel Astor, Saturday night, February 17.

The presentation of the grand prize trophy, a thirty-three inch high bronze figure of the Winged Mercury, was the high spot of the banquet, which was attended by several hundred stamp collectors from all parts of the country. In addition to this award, thirty-three gold, silver and bronze medals were presented to philatelists exhibiting the best section exhibits at the National Stamp Exhibition, held at Rockefeller Center. The show, which opened February 10, closed at 10:30 o'clock Sunday night. Alfred F. Lichtenstein, chairman of the board of judges, made the awards.

A feature of the banquet was the two-way radio conversation between toastmaster former Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby, and Rear Admiral Richard Byrd, 12,500 miles away in Little America. This was heard over a Columbia Broadcasting System hook-up at 10 P. M.

Speakers at the banquet included Clinton B. Eilenberger, third assistant Postmaster General; Rear Admiral Frederic R. Harris, Laurence B. Mason and Theodore E. Steinway. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, noted Arctic explorer and author, was among the guests of honor.

The grand award was presented to Curie for his general collection of the 19th Century, voted the best display among the 410 entered at the exhibition. We consider it of great significance that a general collection of postage stamps won the highest award at this Exhibition.

Philatelist to the King

Over in "dear ol' Lunnon" the British dealers fight for the honor of being selected as "Philatelist to the King." It's quite an honor and is supposed to make the stamps from that Dealer a bit more choice than those that come from the "common 'erd."

Here in America it should doubtless be a greater honor to serve the President or to supply stamps for his collection and M. Ohlman who has been a sturdy Roosevelt Booster since away back before the "N. D." tells us that he has been honored by an order from Colonel Howe for certain stamps to go into the Presidential collection. On receipt of the order, Mr. Ohlman closed up shop and scurried about the shops of other dealers in search of the wanted items. He rounded up most of them and delivered them personally to Colonel Howe at the Biltmore, as one should do when serving such a notable collector.

"Saribo" The New Album

Walter C. Sargent, "The creator of Naribo" loose leaf stamp album sections has now created and is personally publishing "a new and improved sectional album."

He states "It is based upon suggestions and criticisms sifted from tens of thousands of collectors letters received from all parts of the nation. It is really a collector's album."

It should prove to be most popular. No more need be said, other than its name is "SARIBO." You can identify it by the trademark "The Pointer" on Perfection. An announcement is elsewhere in this issue.

Cincinnati News

The Cincinnati Stamp Collectors' Club, Branch No. 2, S. P. A., with fifty members and many visitors present from Dayton and Middletown, were entertained by Mr. Wm. Aull of Dayton, Ohio, who gave a very interesting talk on the 3c 1851 and 1857. He also displayed his collection which contains many very unique items, especially a 3c 1851 on cover with a yellow cancellation, the only known copy.

On March 15, 1934, Dr. F. M. Coppock, President of the S. P. A., will exhibit a portion of his collection which is one of the finest in the State of Ohio. All Stamp Collectors are invited to attend any meeting of Branch No. 2, which are held the first and third Thursdays of the month at the Sinton-St. Nicholas Hotel.

U. S. REVIEW

Thomas F. Whitbread
6 Wildwood Rd., Larchmont, N. Y.

The New York show is history now. No question about it being a great success. The "American" gets our hearty congratulations. Some people wondered why the Imperforate Byrds were not surcharged W. R. H. (Hearst to you). The government will print all they can sell. By the fourth day all the dealers were wondering where all the people were coming from, and where to get stamps to sell them.

As far as we can see the shade difference in the return engagement of 3c Lincoln No. 635 is so negligible that it is not worthy of special recognition. New plates were used, however.

Mr. Steele asks us about the advisability of buying current stuff and laying it away as an investment. He quotes some impressive figures on past issues which would have been good if he had bought them. Our answer is this: Stamps are a good investment, but. The "but" is that discrimination is needed. Buy nothing to lay away as an investment while it is still current. Wait until it is obsolete—seasoned—then, if you see that it is getting good, buy. For example, suppose you bought a hundred copies of each of #523 and #547, $2 orange and black and $2 red and black when they were issued. These stamps were both issued at approximately the same time. Now, ten years later, you would have tripled your money on #523 while your money in #547 would have been dead for ten years. How much better it would have been to wait until #523 was obsolete, paid $3 each to buy them and doubled your money in ten years on this stamp. At the same time, following this system, you would not have purchased #547 until it became obsolete about six months ago and would have thus kept your capital liquid for ten years instead of having it tied up in deadwood all that time.

It's better to pay seven cents for a five cent stamp that looks like a winner than to pay five cents for the same thing only to see it for sale at the same price for the next five years. The one you pay seven cents for has left the starting post, it's in the race, the chances are it will keep on going up. The one you buy when it is still current may be still hanging around the agency for years. You cannot tell—no one can. And when the government starts reprinting them even this plan of investment is knocked out. Let someone else hold the bag—stick to collecting.

Always glad to answer any question we can but please remember the stamped and addressed return envelope.

ANOTHER REAL BOOK The second volume of the King-Johl book on 20th century issues of United States Stamps is at hand from the publisher, H. L. Lindquist, 100 Sixth Avenue, New York. This volume treats on the Commemoratives from 1923 to 1933 and includes all items up through the late Kosciusko stamp.

Like the preceding volume issued about a year ago, this volume is the last word on the stamps which it features. Messrs King and Johl have had access to the records which have enabled them to tell the history of the various stamps from the time their issue was first suggested, through the selection of the design which includes the review and discarding of numerous proposed designs, many of which are illustrated. The production and issue of the stamp, lists of plate numbers, a study of the plates with notes on varieties, cracks, reentries and everything of the sort that appeals to the rabid specialist in United States Stamps.

To the real collector, a book of this type is far more desirable, far more valuable and far more necessary than a catalogue for here is the real story of the stamp.

The book contains over 250 pages 7x10 inch in size, handsomely bound in cloth and should be in the library of every stamp collector who wishes to know about his stamps.

It can be obtained of the publisher or readers of Linn's Weekly who wish to do so may order direct from our office. The price is $3.50 and worth every cent of it.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS We get lots of them. Right now there is before us a scathing denunciation of Postoffice Officials regarding wrongs and fancied wrongs in connection with the issue of the Imperf Byrd Sheets. Whether there is any foundation of fact behind the remarks made is more than we know, lacking proof, we can not print such material. The inference is made however that sheets of the Byrd Stamps printed on the exhibition press at the National Stamp Exhibition from a plate other than the one from which the stamps on sale were printed, might be let out from various sources.

We can readily agree with the writer that none of these sheets should be released. On the other hand, we could as readily recommend that sheets from that plate could be offered for sale through the Agency just as the other sheets are sold and such a proceeding would be a simple way to block any possible financial gain should there have been a leak in the original printing from the exhibition press.

Our correspondent also points out the fact that the Postoffice Department in the case of the late Exhibition, pulled a boner by establishing a postoffice within a room where there was a charge for admission. Personally we think such a complaint is unfounded and unjust. This office was established for a definite purpose and not for public patronage.

WE SAID OUR SAY Last week, we used up considerable space in explaining how we believe a Federation of Stamp Clubs should be organized. Had we not had a very strong belief that our suggestions were such as to bring the most benefit to the local member of a stamp club we should not have used the space. For the time being we will be content to consider what our readers think of the plan and shall not use further space in discussing it.

Our principal object was to point out the fact that the greatest good any stamp collector can get out of stamp club membership can come from his local club and from other associations with stamp collectors within a short distance from his home town. It was with a view to pointing out these facts and encouraging organizations that could be as compact as possible within a close territory that we have given space to this matter. There is much more that can be done by federations of stamp clubs than mere polls on events of national importance.

Matters of national importance that are of vital interest to stamp collectors are few and far between while matters of importance to the individual himself are turning up every week and these can best be handled by small groups in a close territory.

Doubtless a poll taken on the proposal to issue or not to issue a stamp for any event would find the clubs as a whole so split up that even after the count were taken it would be difficult to decide the issue.

PRINTERS The Code governing the printing industry has been signed. It was scheduled to go into effect Monday, February 26. At this date we do not know just what is in it for we have not seen a copy of the final draft. Stamp collectors may wonder what business such discussion has in a stamp collectors magazine, but this code if enforced, will have a very great bearing on stamp collecting through the various philatelic publications.

There are today, stamp publications being printed and selling advertising space at a price below what it would actually cost to produce the printed publication in an office operating under this code. Thus with enforcement of the code, such publications will be obliged to greatly increase rates or fold up.

In our plant, we have maintained a wage scale for our employees, throughout the entire past years of the depression, higher than the scale in the code for the various classes of labor. We know of plants producing Philatelic work where such is not the case.

Already, paper costs have jumped from 25 to 50% higher than they were three months ago.

We believe we are well prepared to meet the demands of the new code and anticipate no difficulty in living up to the obligations of same.

A nice letter from Mr. A. T. Pipkin, Southington, Conn., in which he enclosed 1½c Harvey, Ill. coil. Thanks Mr. Pipkin.

Frank D. Weber of Watertown, Wis., sends a nice lot to look over. Milwaukee seems to have a lot of trouble with "bent" lines. Have seen three denominations with this variety. Altho personally, I have only seen the wide spacing between the "W" and "A" on one ordinary. Mr. Weber says they appear on all of them. Thanks.

J. S. Barnholt certainly believes in collecting broken line varieties. He has sent me quite a few Denver, Colorado, B11, which are nearly all top line breaks in practically all values. Also the first and second "O" breaks in most of these. B 3 types of Denver have some very definitely broken C's and real low D. Thanks for looking these over and let us hear from you fans who collect REAL breaks.

Seems to be quite a few misprints and mixups in the new Catalogue that we overlooked in the first hurried examination. Received letters from Alex. J. La Roche and many others giving broken lines which are growing entirely too fast for publication. Let us have them though so that we can note all of these at a later date.

On all sides we note comment to the effect that Bureau Prints are fast replacing city type precancels. We believe that this will result in a greater number of collectors who collect precancels and will be a great aid in the expanding of our hobby.

H. M. Southgate in his article "The First 10 Years of Rotary Bureau Precancels" in the "Bee" still gives us warning on fake rare Bureaus. It is always best to have some known expert to pass on rarities before you spend good money for them.

Army Flights

The Army Planes took over the carrying of the Air Mail yesterday, Feb. 20th, and evidently did a pretty good job considering the weather although the former schedules were very much reduced and some of the shorter lines no doubt omitted entirely. If collectors tried to cover all of these first flights by the army, they surely had a tough contract however, I shall be pleased to hear from any who tried to cover any considerable portion and with what success. Robt. Richardson sends cover by this service from Akron to Cleveland, which received the backstamp at the Air Mail Field, and had a nice printed cachet on the cover. Will be glad to report all covers of similar nature, carried by the army on this first day service.

U.S.S. Macon

Don Dickason reports that indications are that the Macon is scheduled to start an endurance record attempt on March 12th and on April 9th, will go to Panama for the war games. Covers to the postmaster at Moffett Field, California, might bring you results.

Ironsides Farewell

The Constitution is reported to leave the west coast on March 15th, and there will be a cachet at Los Angeles to commemorate same. This will be printed, so send regular size covers to Richard Dumonte, Sta. A, Box 132,

Los Angeles, Calif., to reach him by March 12th.

Historical Catalogue

This new book by E. H. Brennecke will list and price, USS Akron, Macon and Constitution covers; Graf and Balbo visits, Coste-Bellante, Post, Byrd, and Post & Gatty tours, Washington and Georgia Bi-Centennials and many others and probably be ready for distribution ere this appears. It will probably be of interest to many collectors.

Historical and Other Cachets

Marietta, Ohio, will soon have a new combined airport and sea-plane base with a dedication by the Chamber of Commerce. J. J. Goldish, Box 584, furnishes this information and will be glad to take care of your covers.

Westchester, N. Y., Airport dedication soon. Covers to Milton Ehrlich, 147 Lefferts Ave., Kew Gardens, L. I., New York.

Fond du Lac (Wis.) Philatelic Society will sponsor printed cachet March 17th, for its 5th Annual Banquet and Exhibition. Send regular 6 1/2 empty covers to F. F. Schmidley, 205 E. Rees St., Fond du Lac, Wis.

Lynn, Mass., will have airport dedication this spring, and Roger M. Holdsworth, 138 Bellevue Rd., offers to hold covers.

Miami Philatelic Society announce a pictorial cachet for Pan American Day at Miami. Covers should reach the Society, Rainbow Hotel, Miami Beach, Fla., before April 1st.

Francis H. James, 716 Santa Clara Ave., Alameda, Cal., gives me the figures of 525 covers mailed from Moffett Field, with cachet for the Macon's 5th trip, to Camp Kearney. No doubt James would take care of covers for the Macon events mentioned above if sent to him.

P. J. Ickeringill, Edgewood, R. I., advises that the launching of the U.S.S. Farragut has been postponed, but might occur around March 15th.

Waukesha, Wis., is making plans for airport dedication, and Waukesha Philatelic Club will sponsor the cachet. Covers to the Club, Box 257.

To the Greatest Woman in the World Your Mother!

Send your mother a real philatelic tribute. Mr. Leo August, our first day cover specialist, is preparing a specially designed envelope for the Mother's Day stamp. The envelope will be beautifully engraved and will contain a sentimental insert expressive of Mother's Day.

We will have a competent group of workers to prepare Mother's Day covers for addressing and mailing from the first day city. By subscribing to our cover service you will be able to receive excellent first day covers at minimum cost. Complete Mother's Day envelope with single stamp, 15c; with block of four, 25c.

Byrd Covers Cancelled on Roosevelt's Birthday

The original covers that went with the Byrd Expedition were to have been cancelled on February 3, but were cancelled January 30 instead as a special tribute to President Roosevelt on the occasion of his fifty-second birthday. This mail is to come back to America on the Jacob Ruppert and is expected in New York about June 1st.

You will have another chance for covers to Little America. The supply ship will return there in November and covers to go on it may still be had by sending 53c in money order to Byrd Expedition Headquarters, Washington, D. C. Along with your money order you must of course send an addressed cover. Covers sent on this trip will come back to America about June or July 1935.

Perforation Gauges

Just a suggestion. Mr. S. A. Nauheim, 150-16 33 Ave., Flushing, N. Y. seems to have what the collector wants in the way of a perforation gauge. We have received many letters of praise for his article, and it seems to speed up operation considerable. His adlet appears regularly in the classified department, and at such a low price might be worth a trial.

Garbo Stamp

The Chicago Daily Times carries a picture of a proposed stamp purported to have the picture of Greta Garbo on it. This is of course a Swedish issue and so far as we are concerned the Swedes can have her.

Chester Garska of Chicago sends the clipping and signs his letter, 'yours, with mucilage', from which we infer that Chet must be stuck on Greta.

Perhaps our Uncle Sammy could help reduce his postal deficit by picturing movie stars on our stamps, doubtless some of the producers would pay heavy sugar to promote some of their new stars.

A Real List of Sets

Percy C. Davenport of Bloomfield, N. J., known to many stamp collectors for years past through his long connection with the old Metropolitan Stamp Co., of New York, has acquired the line of sets that this company was noted for. Mr. Davenport has just issued a 32 page list of sets embracing a large variety of material and one of the most thorough lists of sets that we have seen for some time. It's cheaper to buy in sets and you should have a copy of this excellent list.

Mower Moves

R. H. Mower has long been an active stamp dealer on the west coast. For some years past he has operated two stores, one in Los Angeles and the other in San Francisco, both under the name of The Postage Stamp Shop. Mr. Mower is now combining these two stores under the same name in a new location on Market Street, directly across from the Palace Hotel in San Francisco.

Mr. Mower says this is about the most desirable location in the city and the store is one of the largest ground floor stamp shops in America. It has a frontage of ten feet at the front, widening back to 18 feet in the rear and with a depth of 79 feet.

Mr. Mower announces this change in our advertising columns this week.

New Deal For Stamp Collectors

Referring to an item under the above heading in the February 17 issue of this paper, comes a telegram from Mannel Hahn, Editor of the Stamp Department of the St. Louis Star-Times in which Mr. Hahn calls attention to the fact that the original article from which we quoted in our February 17 issue stated in regard to a further printing of the Zeppelin stamps, "it is reported and not denied that an additional printing beyond the original five million stamps was made". Mr. Hahn now advises that in response to his third request to Mr. Eilenberger, that the statement is made by Mr. Eilenberger that the five million stamps originally issued has so far proven sufficient for all requests.

The old Hannibal & St. Joe train was late that day and although scheduled to leave hours earlier the rider was delayed until 5 p. m.

K. M. GIERHART, BALTIMORE, OHIO

Every once in a while MINT PRECANCELS are brought to my attention. Strictly speaking there are not supposed to be such animals, but like every other rule or law there are those who delight in winking at said law or just plainly ignoring it, for it cannot be denied that there exists many precancels that have full gum on the back and have not served postal duty either. In the minds of the novice or amateur I want to settle this idea, that BECAUSE A PRECANCEL HAS GUM ON THE BACK OR IS MINT THAT IT IS NOT WORTH MORE THAN IF IT HAD NO GUM. The fact that it is mint to many conscientious collectors lessens the desirability of the stamp in their eyes, because they know that some funny business has went on or such stamps could not have appeared.

Need I mention that if any of the featherless BYRD stamps, as one dealer calls the imperfs., appear precancelled that they can be nothing but RANK FAVORS of the worst sort.

J. L. Bond, who seems to be hot on the track of the Battle Creek Type 3 emissions, and who lives up in Manlius, N. Y., reports the 30c up. In the Feb. BEE I note that Prof. Gambler lists the 13c and 15c.

H. W. Alexander of Milbridge, Me., shows me the following items: Kosciuszko from Belfast, Me., U-120; Bennington, Vt., U-121; Lebanon, N. H., U-120; NRA, Dover, N. H., U-122 up. A 1c ord. from Sac City, Ia., double up in a type resembling U-120 but a little larger and more square like letters. What kind of a type is this you Iowa readers?

John Wilson of Jamaica, N. Y., an odd standby, submits the following:

BROADWAY CHATTER

By BI STANDER

The Exhibition at New York held from February 10th to 18th is over and we were astounded by the enormous crowds. Outside of the exhibits for prizes we believe that this show tops the 1926 exhibition by far. It would take more than our space allows to go into the various things we saw, but we cannot refrain from mentioning the demand for the Byrd special sheets of 6 imperforate. The first day lines were so long that police had to limit the length of the line. Adjoining booths did a land office business selling the Byrd sheets at a premium, and the amount of first day and last day covers that were sent will never be computed. The booths were tastefully arranged and sometimes customers ten deep lined up to purchase. Almost anything sold, and dealers' stocks are sadly depleted. We found something new at the Exhibits and scenes made by cutting up stamps were done remarkably well. We renewed old acquaintances of many years and we know that a fine time was had by all.

We hear of an optometrist in California who has put together a collection depicting optical instruments and eyeglasses on stamps. Also a lady collector won a prize at the Exhibition just held for the best stamp collection showing violet stamps. What a joy in life can be obtained along the highways and byways of philately.

The Fulton Stamp Company located at 38 East 23rd Street of which Herman Ast is manager, was robbed during the night recently and U. S. and foreign stamps were taken. This is the branch, the main office being 135 West 42nd Street. Dealers are asked to watch out for any stamps being offered. Unfortunately a list of part of the stamps have not been furnished us.

The size of the collection of the late Frederic De coppet is large as part VI will be dispersed on Feb. 13, 14 and 15 by J. C. Morgenthau & Co., Inc., at 23 West 47th Street.

A collector states he kills two birds with one STAMP by sending subscriptions to a dealer for two different stamp papers.

It is stated that 100 guides showed visitors around the spacious floors of the Exhibition. A new and good departure.

The Washington Stamp Exchange of 252 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey is a comparatively new concern. Mr. August is the director and a man of energy. They had a fine booth at the Exposition and did some extremely fine business. The first day cover catalog is put out by this firm.
